

Moran to Study Hunger Issues in Kansas

SALINA - Congressman Jerry Moran today announced he will make stops next week to learn more about hunger issues in Kansas. Moran will be in Salina, McPherson and Wichita on Thursday, May 31 and Friday, June 1. As a member of the House Agriculture Committee and a co-chairman of the House Hunger Caucus, Moran will be focusing on food and nutrition issues included in the next farm bill.

"As the House Agriculture Committee begins writing the 2007 Farm Bill, I want to hear from Kansans about how to make food stamps and other programs more accessible and efficient," Moran said. "I am also taking this opportunity to learn about how Kansans are working in their own communities, as well as across the state and around the world to address the needs of those who are hungry."
